

This week the Resident's Journal is a day later than usual because yesterday was a holiday, Memorial Day, which the office personnel take off every year. Memorial Day originally recognized the Northern Civil War soldiers; now the last Monday in May is set aside to honor fallen soldiers in any war. Over time it has also become a day to honor our ancestors or anyone important to us who has died, and the local cemeteries are evidence of this. On this special weekend, these usually sad locations become beautiful flower gardens as folks recognize their relatives and others by decorating their grave sites.

The rest of the week looks much like any other week, Bingo, crafts, devotional, storytime - have fun! Some sort of notable "holidays" this week are:

Heimlich Maneuver Day	June 1
National Go Barefoot Day	June 1
Donut Day	June 4 & 5

Two days for Donut Day! Yum! These are actually fundraising days for the Salvation Army.
Have a great week everyone!

HAPPY BIRTHDAY

Only one birthday this week!

First you take a giant bowl and put a waffle in it, then you add a bunch of jam and stir it for a minute.

After that you get a cup and fill it up with custard, then dump it in with mushroom soup and just a little mustard.

Squeeze a lemon right on top, add peanut butter-oodles, but don't forget the applesauce and two big scoops of noodles.

Then nuke it in the microwave. That's it, you've got a winner. Get the plates out now and yell, "Come and get it! Dinner!"
