

Cordell Christian Home's Resident's Digest

It's been one more busy week up here at the north end of College Street. Now that the weather is starting to change, we're already starting to look forward to the holiday season that seems to begin with Halloween.

We had 24 Bingo players throughout the week last week. Jesse Locke got to holler "Bingo" more than anyone else, with Judith Winn in second and Margaret Frank and Florence Smith tied for third. Judith and Jr. Murphy each got two blackout prizes; Norma Moler, Margaret Frank and Jim Fleming got to pick one a piece.

Margie's 'chatters' on Friday talked about the St. James Hotel that was mentioned in last week's Beacon. The stories surrounding the hotel were so interesting that this discussion will be continued in a couple of weeks when Margie returns from her vacation to visit there in person, take pictures, and report back with her own stories! Hopefully she won't meet up with the gentleman that has been haunting the hotel for well over 100 years. If she does, we hope she gets his picture.

Our Mondays are always the time for some of the ladies to gather in the sunroom to share the latest news while Iris paints their nails. This week Thursday we will finish out the month with a birthday celebration for all of our residents and staff who were born in September.

The October Activities Calendar is starting to fill up with crafts, cooking, visitors and all the other regularly scheduled things. Now's your chance to get your name in there for a time of singing, sharing, or otherwise volunteering and receiving the blessing you get from visiting Cordell Christian Home. See you soon.
